BEREAVEMENT POLICY &
BEREAVEMENT GUIDELINES

Introduction

‘Every 22 minutes a parent of a child dies that’s around 23,600 bereaved children each year. Almost one in every class. Many more are bereaved of a grandparent, sibling, friend, teacher or other significant person in their life’. (Child Bereavement UK, 2017 statistics)

It is almost inevitable therefore, that at some time any school will have to deal with a death that impacts the whole school community. Death is something that we do not like to think about, so when we are faced with it, we often find ourselves underprepared.

Unfortunately, an inevitable and terrible consequence of the global coronavirus outbreak is that there will be many more individuals, families, schools and communities dealing with bereavements so it’s important we are aware of the impact to our school community and can provide support to any stakeholder who may be affected.

Bereavement and loss are an inevitable part of living and growing. It is important that within our whole school setting we provide learning opportunities for children to develop their own appropriate range of emotional, spiritual and intellectual responses to manage these experiences.

The ethos of LPS is based upon openness and mutual support, we aim to provide a framework in which these experiences can be realised in a supportive manner. Bereavement impacts everyone in different ways and for different periods of time.

All stake-holders have a duty to help support anyone when they could be feeling their most vulnerable, in the way that best meets their needs. By adopting a planned, open and considered approach LPS can support the emotional well-being of the child, family and staff.

Aims of a Bereavement Policy

To identify key staff within the school and LA, resources and further support services to help the whole school community work together.

To provide a framework for all staff, teaching and non-teaching, to give guidance in how to deal sensitively and compassionately with difficult and upsetting circumstances.

To have clear expectations about the way LPS will respond to the death, and provide a nurturing, safe and supportive environment for all.

To support pupils and/or staff before (where applicable), during, and after bereavement.

To meet the needs of all its children and staff and to be a place that both child and family can rely on, and gain much needed support.

For children to have the opportunity to tell their story, express their feelings, share their memories and develop coping strategies through support by sensitive staff.

GUIDELINES FOR STAFF AND GOVERNORS

A death can affect the school community in different ways and often depends on:

The role the deceased person had within school

How well known they were in the local community

Circumstances surrounding the death, particularly suicide or violent deaths

Experience has shown that adults and children benefit from being kept informed. Rumour and gossip can be very damaging and can even lead to both young and old developing the attitude that the death is not a topic to talk about. Children and young people have a healthy curiosity, and if they are not informed of the circumstances or feel they are unable to ask questions, their normal grief process can be obstructed.

The following guidelines relate to informing staff and governors:

- * Where possible, discussion should take place with the bereaved family and their wishes taken into account before any decisions are made in relation to how and what to tell the staff and wider school community.
- * It is important to consider any cultural or religious implications and seek advice if necessary.
- * ALL staff (including support staff such as lunch time supervisors, behaviour coaches etc) should be informed as soon as possible using our normal method of communication, e.g. a whole school staff meeting or team meetings, this includes part time staff and measures are taken to inform absent staff over the telephone.
- * Give a factual explanation of how the death occurred and if applicable the circumstances of what happened leading up to the death.
- * LPS Senior Leadership team should be prepared for reactions to this news including visible upset and feelings of anger/guilt. People may connect the incident to their own personal experience of bereavement, so feelings about past bereavements may need to be discussed. This is perfectly natural.
- * A member of Senior Leadership will be available to members of staff, parents or children if they are finding the situation particularly hard. Seek the advice of external support services as appropriate (see Appendix 4).
- * Supply cover can be arranged if necessary.
- * One person, preferably the family liaison officer or a staff member familiar to family, will be a nominated point of contact for the family to ensure free flow of accurate information to and from the school.
- * Arrange staff/pupil condolences with collaborative agreement if felt appropriate.
- * A set time for teachers to inform their class what has happened will be agreed upon including how this is to be done and EXACTLY what is going to be said. Absent pupils will identified.
- * Plans to follow this up with a special assembly, memorial service or memorial tree/garden will be discussed and made.
- * A member of the Wellbeing Team or Senior Leadership Team to be on hand at the end of the working day for staff to de-brief and reflect upon the day's events and to agree upon any further action or support that may need to be put in place.

- * Where possible staff who have requested to attend the funeral or memorial should be released.

GUIDELINES FOR INFORMING STUDENTS

The following guidelines relate to informing children of the death:

- * Children will be identified who are most likely to be impacted by the news because they had a close relationship with the deceased or are already bereaved to be told together as a separate group. Where possible pupils will be informed in the smallest group, preferably class groups. This should be done by adults they know.
- * It is always a shock when a death occurs in a school even if it may have been anticipated. Children expect to live forever, and so a fellow student dying can feel quite shocking. Experience has shown that it is more beneficial if all pupils are informed.
- * Staff will be provided with guidelines on how to inform children.
- * Staff will be as prepared as possible for children to say or do the unexpected, experience has shown some responses or apparent lack of response may be upsetting for adults. We are aware that no apparent response does not mean that a child does not care.
- * We will identify any key answers that need to be prepared, e.g. the facts about an illness, or dates which may be relevant to the death such as end of school year and changing class or schools.
- * Discussions will be ended on a positive note - not all people who are ill or have accidents die - many get better. Ways will be considered to look forward to remember the deceased and their family. An assembly to end discussion may can be arranged.

Grief will last a life time and can surface throughout with new questions and many reflections

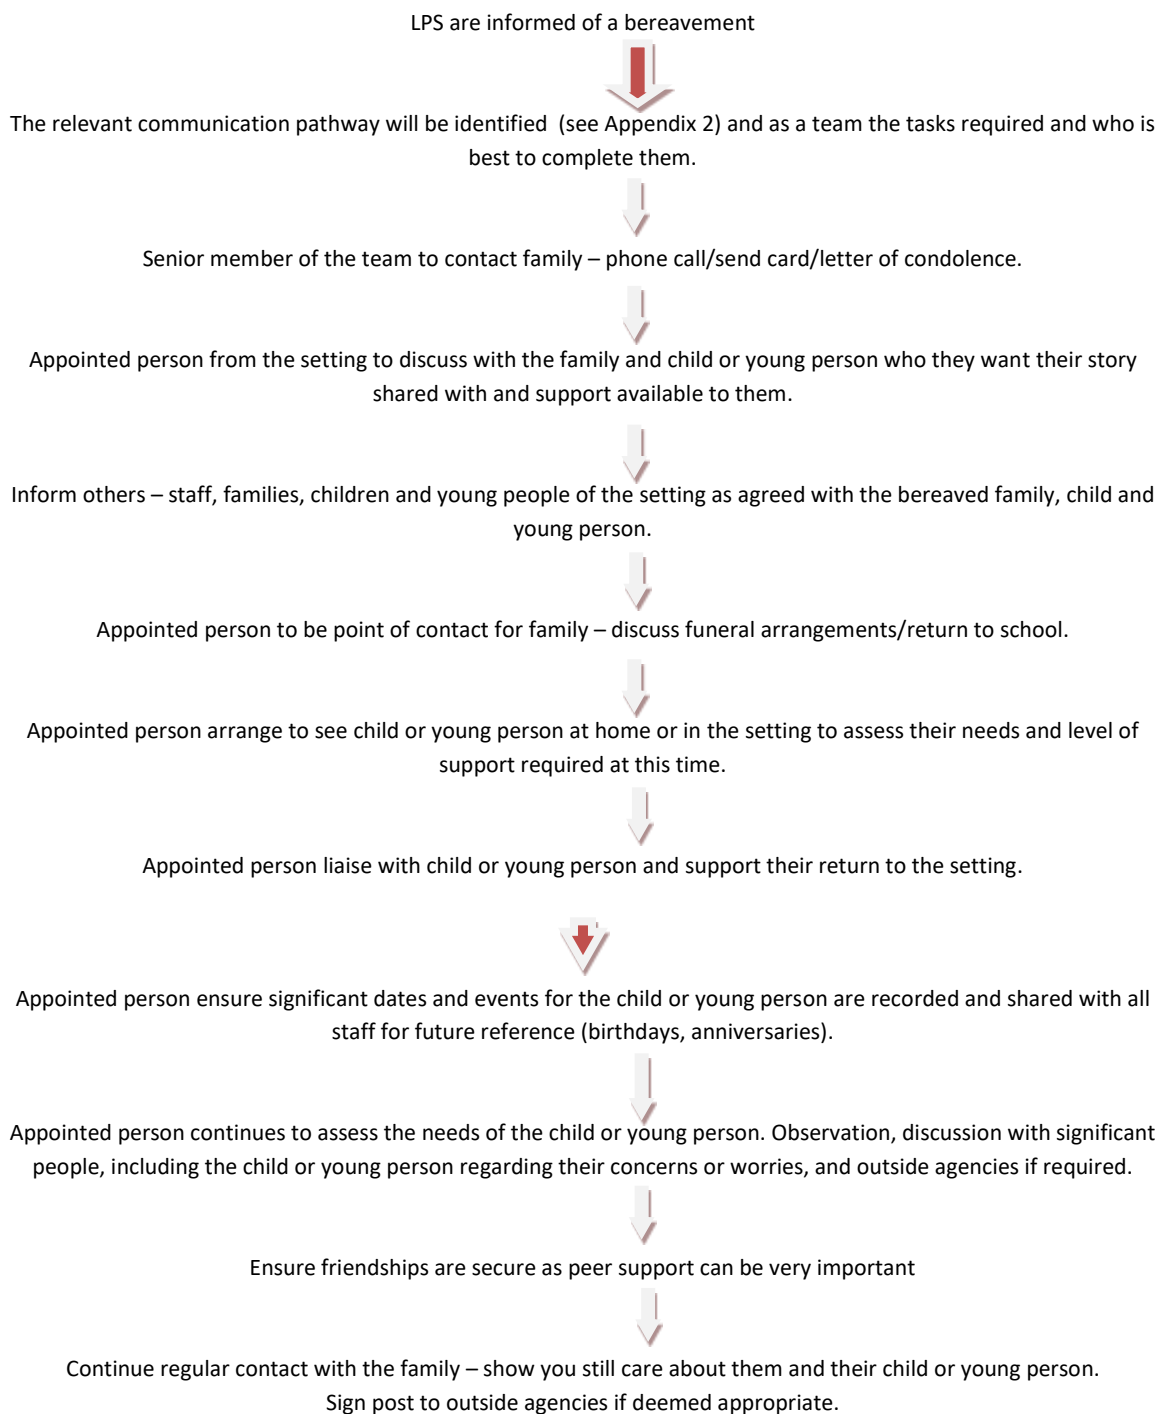

IN THE DAYS AFTER THE DEATH

- * LPS will consider any cultural or religious implications and seek advice if necessary.
- * LPS will nominate a key member of staff with responsibilities for supporting other staff and children.
- * Temporarily staff cover will be provided if possible for their normal activities.
- * LPS will try to engender an awareness of when people need help and support, particularly those who worked closely with the person who has died and secretaries /administrative staff who are taking telephone calls, dealing with parents etc.
- * Through the nominated staff member, who has responsibilities for liaising with the individual's family, their wishes will be ascertained about the school's involvement in the funeral, if any.

In line with the families' wishes LPS will consider practical issues such as:

- Sending flowers to the home or to the funeral, making a collection etc...
- Who will attend the funeral?
- Cover for any staff who may be going to the funeral.
- Informing the parents of those pupils who will be involved.
- Possible closure of the school. If this is the case remember to tell lunchtime supervisors, caretaker etc. in advance.

BEREAVEMENT FLOWCHART

GUIDELINES FOR SUPPORTING A BEREAVED STUDENT RETURN TO SCHOOL

LPS appreciate that when the child or young person returns to the setting they may want to get straight back into friends, work and routine. They will have been surrounded by grieving family members and often a chaotic household of visitors. School maybe their break from that.

LPS will put action plans in place to help the child and young people return by:

- * Identifying a member of the team who will be the main contact point for them and their family.
- * Ensuring regular contact, this may be daily or weekly depending on needs and wishes of the family. This will help us understand how they are coping, what support they may need now and in the future, to discuss concerns and worries and plan strategies to cope.
- * If they stay at home, we will remember them. Cards and messages will be sent from appropriate people (peer group and staff they have good relationships with) Activities such as these will give the other children the opportunity to discuss their own concerns or experiences with the family and help them to feel they are doing something positive to support them. This death may remind others of their own experiences and so be prepared to support them. LPS is aware we may find out information about a child that we didn't know before. We will be ready to listen to them all.
- * Before they return, all LPS staff will be aware of the bereavement and the possible effects on them, their behaviour and their learning, so that appropriate care and support will be given throughout the setting. We know that bereaved children and young people have 'physical' illness, such as headaches, tummy aches and feeling sick, as well as mental sadness including lack of concentration, feeling tired, disorganised anger and frustration. These will have an impact on work load and learning. We will Monitor how things are going on their return and maintain communication with all staff involved.

- * Normal LPS rules and expectations of behaviour will be maintained. This is important for the children and young people within the setting and the child or young person who have been bereaved. The rules and expectations are all part of the 'normal' routine and will help to make them feel secure. However, the impact of bereavement on the whole family when giving sanctions and the impact the sanctions may have on the whole family will be considered and remembered.
- * We will Consider 'time out' strategies that suit the child or young person and the setting. Time out cards, signals or signs can be used to help them to exit the room quickly if they are feeling vulnerable or emotional. We will ensure they have a safe place to exit to.
- * LPS know there is no set pattern or time limit to grief – It is a unique experience and the process is a lifelong one. At different ages and during new or transitional times they will have new questions requiring answers and questions requiring a re-visit of what happened; to develop a better understanding and acceptance.
- * It is not unusual for bereaved pupils to take time off school during the early stages of their bereavement. For some, the need to be with their families will be strong, and indeed they may suffer from separation anxiety when the time comes for a return to school. For others the familiarity, stability and routines of school life may prompt an early return. The time away from school will vary from pupil to pupil but when they do return, they may have a number of concerns – We will only know what these are and how they might be resolved if we ask.

Some of the more common concerns might be:

How will staff and peers react– who has been told, what do they know, what will be said, how much will I have to say to people?

We can help by - meeting with them to welcome them back, acknowledge the death and talk through their concerns. Saying something simple like "I am sorry to hear that your dad died – sometimes it helps to talk about it and if so, who would you like to be there for you?" is usually much appreciated by them. If possible offer them choices about how things should be handled and what support would be helpful. Let staff and classmates know how they want to be received and supported.

- Fear of sudden emotional outbursts – anger, distress, panic...

We can help by - normalising grief reactions and giving them choices about what strategies will help them to cope in the classroom e.g. able to leave lessons without fuss – “exit card” system, where they can go, who they can talk to.

- Fear when they realise they may not remember what the deceased person looks like

A laminated photo of the deceased person may give enormous comfort when the visual image begins to disappear. A special teddy or other memento will often give great comfort in times of distress and upset. They may also want to show this when talking about the person who died. It should be stressed that whatever helps the child within reason should be encouraged.

- Fear of being behind with work and unable to catch up

We can help by - clarifying with other staff what is essential to accomplish and what can be left, and offering appropriate help to achieve what needs to be done.

- Inability to concentrate and feel motivated or sit still

We can help by - Reassuring them that this lack of motivation and concentration is normal and will pass. Offer shorter more manageable tasks, write down the task, give encouragement for achievements, and minimising difficulties can often help.

- Family grief impacting on normal family functioning

Disrupted routines, sporadic meals, chaotic bedtimes are possible reasons why they may be inadequately prepared for school, does not have the necessary equipment, and may be tired or hungry.

We can help by - Talking with them to ascertain where areas of difficulty lie and try and work out strategies with them and their family to help keep things on an even keel in school. Identify their strengths and help them build on them.

- Unable to meet homework/project deadlines because of altered responsibilities within the family and home

We can help by - helping them work out and meet priorities. Be flexible where possible and offer additional support where needed.

- Forthcoming examinations eg KS2 Sats

We can help by - Explaining the process of notifying examination boards and the possible outcomes.

GUIDELINES FOR PROVIDING ON-GOING SUPPORT FOR A BEREAVED STUDENT

- * If the child/young person thinks it would be helpful and friends agree, a peer support network will be established – ensuring that those helping are given appropriate support themselves or seek help outside.
- * A note will be made of significant dates which might affect the pupil, e.g. date of death, birthdays, Christmas, anniversaries. We will make sure other members of staff are aware of these and the possible impact these may have. Where appropriate, we will acknowledge these potentially difficult times with them e.g. “I know Christmas is coming up and it might feel a very different and difficult time for you all this year without your Dad – so don’t forget, if it helps to talk you can always come and see me”.
- * We will consider possible reactions to class/assembly topics. We will discuss how these difficulties might best be managed with them e.g. if making Mother’s day cards do ask them if they wish to be included in the activity too, very often the answer is ‘yes’ as they still have a parent, they just can no longer see them, but still want to remember them.
- * We will look out for signs of isolation, bullying or difficulties in the playground – bereaved children/young people are often seen as vulnerable and may become a target.
- * We will consider using books/activities to help explore feelings and ideas about death as part of the normal school curriculum
- * We will be alert to changes in behaviour – these may be an indication that they are more affected by their bereavement than they are able or willing to say. Reactions may present themselves months or years after the event, and it may be difficult for staff and others to relate behaviour(s) to the bereavement.
- * Follow up absences – absence could indicate bereavement – associated problems at home or school.
- * At transition time, we will make sure the new class teacher and/or school are aware of the bereavement and support in situ.

GUIDELINES FOR SUPPORTING A STUDENT WITH SPECIAL EDUCATIONAL NEEDS

All children benefit from being given simple, honest “bite size” pieces of information about difficult issues - often repeated many times over. For further support visit www.autism.org.uk/about/family-life/bereavement.aspx or contact Simon Says.

When talking about death and bereavement with a child with learning difficulties it might be helpful to consider: -

- * WHO should be key worker working with the child and family - inform parents who this person will be and keep in contact, this should be someone they ALREADY have a good relationship with.
- * WHERE is the student most receptive to new ideas? – quiet room, pool, outside. Use this space for talking with them.
- * WHAT should be talked about? (as agreed with parents). Ensure that you use the same language and ideas as the family to avoid confusion.
- * HOW is new information normally given? - signs, verbally, pictures. Use their normal communication methods to talk about illness and death.
- * HOW is new information normally backed up? – you will probably need to repeat information a number of times over a long period. Do you need to make a social story? (www.speakingspace.co.uk will assist with this)
- * PROCEED at a level, speed and language appropriate to them.
- * BUILD on information given – small bites of the whole, given gradually will be easier to absorb.
- * REPEAT information as often as needed.
- * WATCH for reactions to show the child understands – modify and repeat as needed.
- * FOLLOW the student’s lead – if indicating a need to talk or have feelings acknowledged, encourage as appropriate.
- * WATCH for changes in behaviour to indicate the child is struggling more than they can say and offer support as needed.
- * MAINTAIN normal daily routine as much as possible.
- * LIAISE with other agencies involved with the student to ensure accuracy and continuity of information.

GUIDELINES ON HOW TO INFORM CHILDREN

Remember it is ok to show your emotions in moderation. It is important we model to children and young people healthy responses to sad news and a natural response to hearing about a death is to shed a tear.

- * Be honest and factual.
- * Use clear language – use the person’s name, do not use euphemisms like ‘passed away’ or ‘lost’ use the words dead, died and death to avoid confusion.
- * Allow the children/young people to ask questions and answer them honestly and factually in terms they will understand.
- * Allow the children/young people to ask questions and answer them honestly and factually in terms that they will understand.
- * Allow the children/young people to verbalise their feelings.
- * Allow the children/young people to discuss the situation and share their experiences of death (even if that is the death of a pet).
- * Ensure the children/young people understand that the death is nothing to do with anything they have said or done. It is in no way their fault.
- * Reassure them that not all people who are ill or have had an accident will die and that many people get better.
- * Acknowledge some days will be harder than others
- * Do not expect to go straight into maths, allow for a time of restoration preferably with a physical outlet.
- * Put an appropriate time limit on the discussion. It is preferable to resume normal school activities as soon as possible thus ensuring minimal disruption within the school day which also offers a sense of security and familiarity.

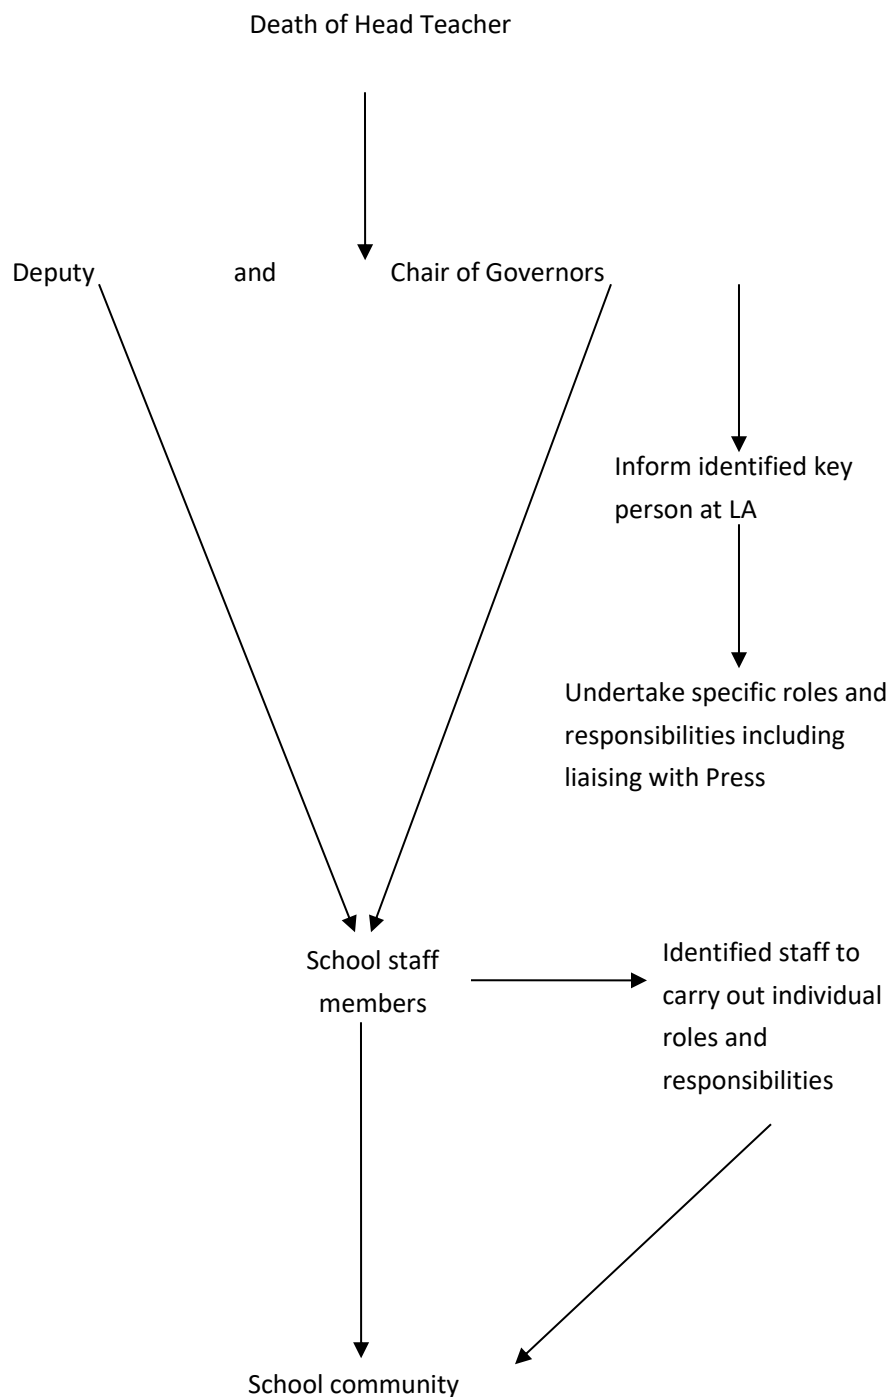

Suggested scripts to use when someone dies:

“I’ve got some really sad news to tell you today that might upset you. I know most of you will have heard of cancer, and know that sometimes people with cancer get better, but other times people die from it. _____, year XX teacher, has been ill with cancer for a long time. I have to tell you that _____ died yesterday in hospital”.

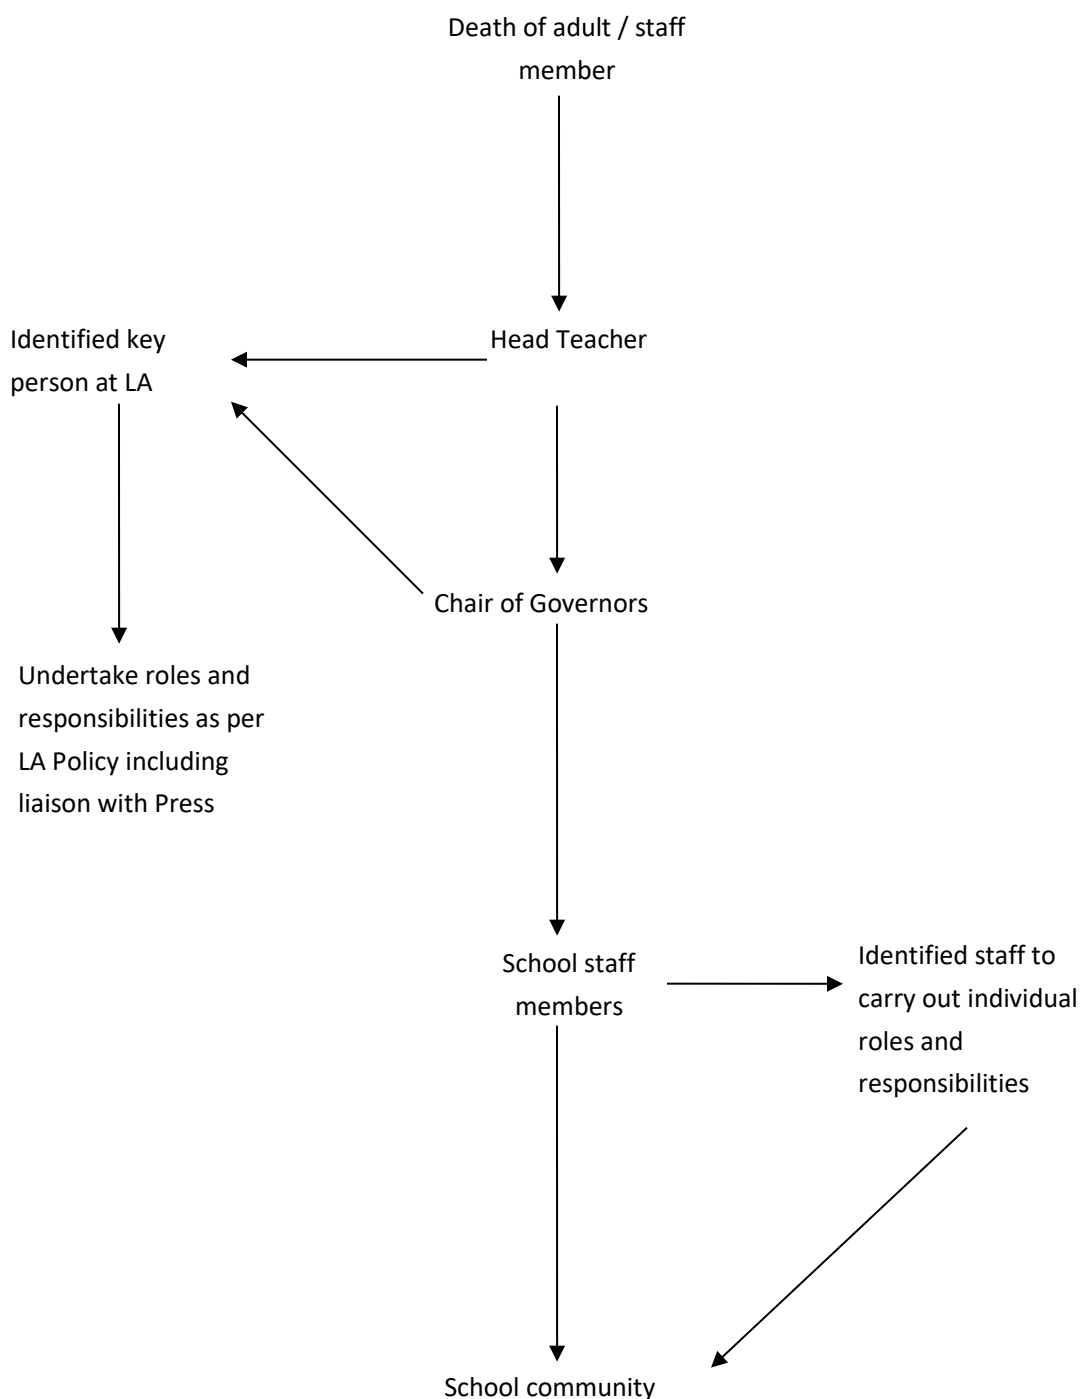

“Sometimes people have accidents at work, at home, at school or on the road. People may be hurt or injured in the accident and they may have to go to hospital for treatment. Sadly, there are some accidents that cause people to die. I have some really sad news to tell you that might upset you. Yesterday _____, who is in Year XX, was in an accident and he was so badly injured that he died”.

Dear Parents

Your child's class teacher had the sad task of informing the children of the tragic death of <Name>, who has been a <teacher, LSA, Lunch time supervisor...> at this school for <number> years.

Our thoughts are with <Name's> family at this time and in an effort to try and respond to his/her death in a positive, all children have been informed.

The children were told that <Name> died from an <asthma attack> on <Date>. A number of pupils have been identified as being asthmatic and <Name>, the School Nurse has today reassured them that it is unusual for a person to die from asthma.

When someone dies, their family and friends have lots of feelings - sadness, anger, and confusion - which are all normal. The children have been told that their teachers are willing to try and answer their questions at school, but I have made available some information which may help you to answer your child's questions as they arise. You can obtain this from contacting Simon Says a Hampshire based child bereavement support charity. Their contact details are 02380 647550, email info@simonsays.org.uk or visit their website www.simonsays.org.uk.

The funeral will take place at <Named Church or Crematorium> on <Day and Date> at <Time>. Your child may wish to attend the funeral. If this is the case, you may collect your child from school and accompany them to the church. Please inform your child's tutor.

Yours sincerely
